No Bones About It

The Crypt Custom Cycles of Opelika, Alabama, offers a frame featuring an anatomically correct, solid titanium frame skeleton. "The skeleton is the top half of the frame. It isn't bolted on or there for decoration. Its backbone is the frame's backbone. The leg bones are the frame's legs," The Crypt's John Farr says.

The frame can be built to customer specs within the confines of the skeleton and is currently offered only as a rigid. The skeleton bikes can be set up for just about any drivetrain configuration and tire size. The rear fender/cowling houses the gas tank, oil bag and electronics and can be configured for solo or two up riding, with or without airbags.

The Harman Girder Front End Is Back

The Harman girder is back in production thanks to Executive Choppers, who's now offering a limited production run of the stylish front end made popular in the '70's on many choppers.

Each girder features steel or billet aluminum trees with accommodations for rubber mount risers. You can also order the original configuration, which included the bars as an integral part of the front end. Bottom fork clamps are drilled and tapped for headlight mount. Harman girder front ends can be ordered fully chromed or raw and are offered in lengths from 6 inches to 30 inches over.

For complete details contact Executive Choppers at 916-780-6508.

Tour Master Women's Trinity jacket

New for Tour Master's 2006 line is the Trinity, a jacket specifically designed for women riders. The Trinity's 400 Denier Nylon Dobby shell combines with a Rainguard waterproof/breathable barrier to protect the rider from the road and rain. It's soft, durable microfiber lining in the collar and cuffs is designed to provide comfort along with protection from chafing. For protection, the Trinity has removable armor at the elbow and shoulder with an articulated Triple Density back protector. Pockets include a zippered chest map pocket, hand warmer pockets, an internal pouch pocket and mobile media pocket. And adjustable waist belts, with TPR pulls, help to fine tune the flattering fit.

The Trinity retails at $129.99 in women's sizes XS through XL and comes in three colors: light blue, black, and silver.
